

Homophones

Homophones are words which sound the same, but which have different spelling and different meanings eg wheel, we'll

Read this article about POP ART. Then choose which homophone is correct. Draw a line through the incorrect words.

Pop art started in Britain in the 1950s and spread threw/through the world in the 1960s. At this time sum/some artists saw/sore how important media and advertising were becoming. Their art reflected this new/knew awareness. Pop artists used popular culture such as advertising, comic characters and fast food in their/there work. They used the technique called appropriation, which means borrowing images which have appeared in the past/passed and using them in a knew/new weigh/way.

Pop artists did not try to make a judgement about whether/weather popular culture was write/right or wrong. Their/they're objective was two/too/to show how popular culture had flooded into people's minds. Pop artists wanted two/too/to bring art two/too/to ordinary people, so/ sew that art was closer two/too/to real life. One/ won of the most famous pop artists was Andy Warhol who's/whose paintings included soup cans and movie stars like Marilyn Monroe.

Critics in the 1960s sore/saw the knew/new pop art trend as vulgar and unimportant. Supporters of pop art liked it four/for they felt it was art that everybody could understand.

Look up the meanings of these words in a dictionary:

judgement

vulgar

awareness

critic